NORTH CAICOS
41 sq. miles

North is known for tall trees and small farms of corn, cassava, beans and okra. Entrepreneurs are branching into landscape gardens and fruit orchards. Also the home of the finest Caicos sloop builders on the sea. The shallow waters of Bottle Creek are a favourite for bonefishing, kayaking, birdwatching and isolated picnics. Wades Green was one of the most successful Loyalist era plantations. A walking tour of the well preserved ruins is a one mile gentle hike over old roadways.

Middle Caicos was inhabited by Tainos (Lucayan Indians) from 750-1500 AD, until Spanish enslavement destroyed their civilization and decimated their numbers. British Loyalists established huge plantations in the Caicos Islands (late 1780s) and grew cotton/sisal for only one generation. The majority abandoned their lands when slavery was outlawed and the true difficulties of farming on these isolated islands became apparent, leaving their lands to the workers - land now known as generational properties.

Conch Bar Caves system includes over 15 miles of above-water caverns. Four species of bats live inside.

Middle is known for preserving TCI culture, local artisans make beautiful handcrafts, bush medicine is collected, folklore is alive and cultural traditions are still appreciated. Mudjin Harbour is a "must see" for photographs - and an important public beachsite! Hike the Crossing Place Trail and explore seven more beaches to the northwest, picnic in the shade of the cave, climb down to the "hidden" beach and beachcomb the isthmus of Dragon Cay. Middle has the best tasting conch in all the Islands!

Walking, Hiking, Biking, Caving, Camping, Kayaking, Snorkelling, Stand-Up Paddle Boarding, Bird Watching, Sailing, Fishing and Small Boat Tours can all be arranged with knowledgeable eco-guides to all portions of North and Middle Caicos, to East Caicos and beyond...

Over 190 species of birds have been sighted in TCI including the rare West Indian whistling duck, greater flamingo, Cuban crow, osprey, reddish egret, frigate bird, tropic bird, pelican, kestrel, terns, sandpipers, Bahama woodstar, bananaquits and owls.

North, Middle and East Caicos Wetlands Nature Reserve - The largest nature preserve in the Caribbean covers half of Middle Caicos and one third of North Caicos.
